Best Local Guitar-Slinging Momma

DONNA HOPKINS' new, long-awaited album makes the most of her Southern swamp, blues, rock, gospel and R&B influences without resorting to needless soloing or endless jams. Her Bonnie Bramlett salt-and-vinegar voice sounds great on "Dirty Alabama Road," a song that should have been a hit and still has a chance if they ever make a sequel to Sweet Home Alabama. She holds her own on the six-string and has created a tough-yet-friendly stage presence that perfectly complements her gutsy music.
